Richard D. Gluck joined Fairbank & Vincent and opened our San Diego office in 2000. Since then, Rich has represented corporate and individual clients in a wide variety of business and securities litigation matters in state and federal court, in arbitrations before the NASD, and in SEC investigations and enforcement actions. His more recent engagements include the following:

- The successful defense of a large hospitality-industry company against a $2 million breach-of-contract claim in a six-day jury trial in San Diego Superior Court;
- The settlement on extremely favorable terms of a securities-fraud class action, an SEC enforcement action, and more than a dozen NASD arbitrations for a former executive of a large municipal-bond underwriter; and
- The successful settlement of a securities class action and separate derivative action for a former executive of a national health care company.

Before joining Fairbank & Vincent, Rich served as General Counsel for a privately held automobile dealership group with over $200 million in annual revenues. Before that, he was an associate in the San Diego office of Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher, where he defended securities-fraud and consumer class actions for automobile manufacturers, drug companies, cellular telephone providers, hotels and casinos, and rental car companies, and represented pharmaceutical, food service, and hospitality companies in employment litigation.

Rich earned his law degree from Santa Clara University in 1990, where he graduated second in his class and served as an editor for the Santa Clara Computer and High Technology Law Journal. Following law school, Rich clerked for United States District Court Judge William H. Orrick in the Northern District of California.
